PERSONALITIES

▲Dave Fox wonders when it will all finally end.

Westborough High School students have many things in common. We've suffered through the "Gym Film" (remember, "Horseplay can result in paralysis or even death"). We've been compelled to sign the "Hazing Form", and the horrors of horrors, many of us have had the joyful opportunity to spend some time in Detention.

W.H.S. isn't all bad, though. In fact, the many fun aspects of our school are shared by a wide range of students. Where else can we hang over the balconies before 8:00 a.m., complaining about the excessive homework we ended up not doing anyway? What other high school has such devoted and caring teachers who give all their time to us students . . . (Brownie Points! Brownie Points!)? And where else in the world could we participate in the all consuming RANGER SPIRIT!?!?

Although we share many common experiences, there's no denying that we are all different. True, some of us have common interests: Center Stage, Athletics, Band, Math Club, Student Government; but as individuals, Westborough High students have great PERSONALITIES!

That is what we are trying to express in our 1992 Yearbook. We want everyone who reads this to know that W.H.S. and the class of 1992 encourage diversity, and that by spending our four years in such an environment, we will carry that faith of individualism with us into the world. No matter how alike we all may seem, and even though we may share many of the same feelings, we all have something within us that makes us different from all the rest. As a diverse student body we unite to make our school like no other, WE give it its PERSONALITY . . .

◀Hari Reddy . . . In deep thought.

Changing of the Guard

Abdow's: the site of every Senior Breakfast known to WHS. Why do we go there? No, not because of the quality food they serve us! It's because of tradition. Our Senior Breakfast wasn't a repeat of past ones. Sure, we did have our share of food fights, and we made a happy face out of our food. And yes, we could tell exactly what Steve DeBoer had for breakfast. But, typical of our class, our Senior Breakfast was different. In past years, the biggest part of the Senior Breakfast was the taking over of the Senior balcony. To the Class of '92, the Senior balcony wasn't a big deal. We didn't feel that we had to prove ourselves by screaming at the top of our lungs, and packing ourselves onto a balcony that hardly gets used throughout the year. The best part of our Senior Breakfast was the five or ten minutes in which we had the downtown rotary completely blocked. (How many cars does it take to block the rotary, anyway?) It was the spirit of togetherness, we were a unit, a class, a harmonious entity if only for a fleeting moment in time. In the course of the year arguments would develop, personalities would conflict and gossip would reign. But maybe the memory of our spring solidarity would be in the back of our mind, in our consciousness. WE ARE THE CLASS OF 92. Back to the rotary, maybe the rest of Westborough didn't think we were funny enough to be worth being late for work, but so what.

UNDER

Underclassmen ... Who are they really? Ask any senior and they might say "Peeons", they might say they're the comic relief of the school, they might also say "They're all alike!". The fact is that although the word in itself groups them all under one name, each class has its own personality.

Freshmen can be seen the first few days of school searching endlessly for the "Fourth Floor", but they are also full of excitement for what's ahead. They are just getting their feet in the door and consequently They Are Everywhere! Sophomores of course are experiencing their first year of being able to look down on the freshman and not always be looked down upon. They get this new sense of power they didn't have before and sometimes forget Upperclassmen still consider them as last year's Freshmen. Juniors can't wait for the hardest year of school to be over so they can be Seniors, finally. Once the seniors take their finals and finish school, you can sense the Juniors excitement at now being able to rule the school! Altogether, although the Underclassmen may blockade the halls so no one can get through, and always do things that make the Seniors just shake their heads in amazement, they add incredible spirit, and character to our school!

Than Words"

April 26, 1991, 11:30 a.m. Stampeding Juniors run to office to be dismissed and leave for home, the salons, or friends houses. It was prom night, all the arrangements were finished, appointments made, plans settled. Now all that was left was to wait and get ready for the big night. It was the night we had been waiting for and anticipating for over 3 years. Ever since we were freshmen around late April, you could feel the excitement of prom season in the air and couldn't wait until you could actually be there. The time had come to go downstairs in that tux or beautiful gown, looking better than ever thought possible and let our parents shoot pictures of us and our dates until their hearts desire. After maybe two roles of film, and about a half an hour of videotape it was time for our limousines to take us to the Knights of Columbus, then dance the night away. Everybody looked fantastic, and we were all under the influence of the excitement. The food was good, and the music was great. When it came time for the Grand March to pick the queen and court, there was a buzz of wonder and guesses as to who would be picked. Finally the court was selected and Liz Cox was named queen of the Prom along with Steve De Boer as her king. Then we danced until we all could hardly move. Tux jackets, bow ties and high heels started coming off and by the end we left with half as much clothes on as we were wearing when we came. The Prom was an unforgettable night filled with many memories. There will never be another evening like it.

After the prom some of us were stuck in Westborough with no place to go. Some of us were lost somewhere on the Cape for over two hours. Some of us were in a bowling alley. Some were at Riverside, some in Boston, and some of us were a little sick and tired of all the excitement and decided that it would be better to stay at home. The prom had started as an anticipation in our underclassmen years and had grown in intensity, blossomed, and now was beginning to wilt a little around the edges. As we sleepily peered at one another in the early morning hours we knew that a milestone had been passed and something gained but also something incredibly sweet that had been lost.

Car Wash

Take the yearbook staff for the class of 1991, give them a bunch of hoses and buckets on a hot day, and what do you get? Who knows?

Anyway, last year's yearbook car wash was a tremendous success and a great deal of fun as well. Despite having to get up in the A.M. hours on a Saturday, a surprisingly decent number of Mr. Kaplan's devoted staff showed up to work. When asked about the success of the car wash, Phil Hanaka, the organizer of it all (pictured far left) simply muttered, "Damn bird s- - -!" For the most part, the capable yearbook staff was rather successful in hitting their targets. The only tragedy of the day occurred when Leanne Doherty (seen left) was mistaken for an '84 Chevy Chevette.

Out on the streets Barry Mosher, Mat McDaniel, and Aakash Patel (pictured in middle), along with the homemade clown, Adam Peltzman, labored under the hot sun to lure cars in. When asked about his success in the streets, Adam said, "I bet Bozo never saw that many finger gestures under his Big Top."

In addition to washing cars, Kate O'Neill organized a rather successful bake sale. Kate, seen mobbed with hungry customers, explained the idea of the car wash/bake sale. "If someone has a dirty car, they get it washed. If they're hungry, they buy a cookie. It's just that simple."

Over all the Car Wash was a lot of fun and a tremendous success. Mr. Kaplan, the yearbook advisor (pictured) said, "It was one of the most successful car washes we ever had. I just can't figure out who opened my windows."

if cars could talk

Why is that Westboro High School upperclassmen can be seen in each store and fast food joint in town? The answer is simple. They care not about buying compact discs, clothes or food, but about going to buy the food in an automobile that they call their own. And when they do finally get into the high school, they make sure that everyone is aware they have arrived. This year seniors proudly sported their pickup trucks, jeeps, station wagons, and even some sporty Corvettes, Audis, Nissans and Camaros. The seniors work hard to keep their wheels running, so why not show them off!

Competition Day

▶Mike Hurley . . . I think I can!

▶▶Leanne Doherty . . . No Peeking!

Spirit! Participation! Team Unity!
Some of the typical words used to describe our Competition Day, but what is it really. The entire student body of Westboro gets ONE day to let go of some steam, and participate in some good old fashioned inter-classmen rivalry. Its also the only day we allow our teachers to make utter fools out of us, and determine the events that decide what makes the best class. But where else can you find every student in the same room together with so much enthusiasm and excitement. Each part of the gym separates each class, and is roaring with cheers for their team in the biggest show of our class patriotism. Nobody really ever waits for the results of the Competition, nobody really cares, (nobody really wants to wait for Mr. Walsh to announce them after the bell rang), but the fact is that winning and loosing isn't the point. Sophomores may edge out the Seniors in a tight "hippity hop" finish, or the Juniors may out last the Freshmen in the struggle up the pole to grab the rings, but one thing remains constant — Competition Day is the one day that we get to do what we want, yell as loud as we can, and not care what the teachers will think because they were the ones responsible.

POWDER Puff

On Saturday November 23, the Junior and Senior girls faced off in the annual Powder Puff Classic. Thousands flocked to Westboro High School field, in anticipation of the outcome of this long awaited event. To the surprise of virtually no one, the class of 1992 won for the second straight year. By handing the juniors a humiliating 14-0 defeat, the senior girls became the first team in Powder puff history to win back to back victories.

The action on the field was football at it's best. The sight of the poor Junior defense was certainly a sad one. They were simply no match for the well-trained, fast paced attack of the Senior offense, led by Leanne Doherty, Jamie Irwin, and Meghan McCarthy. On the other end, the defense, led by the tenacious Sue Smith, was brick wall that not even the biggest and fastest juniors could get by. Although they seemed vicious, the Senior girls were actually quite sensitive. The professionalism they displayed by not running up the score any higher than they did was rather impressive and moved me greatly.

Although the Junior boys had a decent turn out for cheerleading, they too paled in comparison to their Senior counterparts. They may have had the size, but definitely lacked in spirit, attitude, grace, and chest size. The spirited Seniors even managed to take a Junior prisoner, who after the game, was filleted, broiled, and eaten at the post game party.

holiDay Ball

After a long day filled with hanging up decorations, changing light bulbs, making sure the lights turned on, keeping the gold stars up, and getting gold glitter everywhere, the lobby finally looked decent enough to put on this semiformal dance so looked forward to. Of course once the dance got underway all the lights decided to stop working, and three of the gold stars almost fell on people, but the dance was a success anyway. Three quarters of the school and their dates showed up, in their brand new dresses, and new suits and ties, ready to dance the night away. Even the D.J. himself decided to get into the swing of things and showed us his stuff during the dance competition he held. Some of us danced the electric slide, some of us stood and watched over the second balcony, but everyone felt the excitement that filled the lobby.

STAGE DOOR

On December 6th and 7th, under the direction of Jim Vetter, Center Stage turned back the clock to the 1930's for their production of Stage Door, by Edna Ferber and George S. Kauffman. Stage Door is the story of a girls theater house in the '30's, a time when the rise of Hollywood was conflicting with life on the stage. Terry Randall, played by sophomore Tory Temple, is pressured by her friend Jean, played by Vanessa Morrel, and by her boyfriend Keith, played by Adam Peltzman, to take her talent to Hollywood. At the same time, Hollywood producer and good friend David Kingsley, played by Mike Mello, tells her that her true place is in the theater. In the end, Terry puts aside the glamour of Hollywood, in favor of her true passion for the stage.

Both on and off the stage, the execution of this show was very well done. Senior Mat McDaniel headed a backstage crew who had responsibility for lighting and sound, and set design. Much of the production's coordination was done by stage managers Kate Abbott and Felicity Erwin. Individual acting performances were also very strong. As usual, the actors from the class of '92 contributed a lot. However, this year they were not alone on the stage. Outstanding efforts from our lower classmen show that Center Stage definitely has a bright future ahead of them.

Vanishing act

This year's Boston Globe Drama Festival was a very special one, not only for Center Stage, but for Westboro High School as a whole. This year W.H.S. was a host school for the Preliminary round competition. On February 29, 1992, six other Massachusetts high schools brought their forty minute plays to our school in hopes of advancing to the state SemiFinals.

In the midst of preparing the refreshments, entertainment, and facilities for the festival, Westboro could not foresee that they had a play to put together. That play was Richard Greenberg's "Vanishing Act." This was an abstract, surreal, experimental type of pay very different than the previous Competition plays.

As for finding directors, Center Stage did not have to look any further than the friendly confines of Westboro High English teacher, Mrs. Leahy and her co-director senior Dave Bouffard. The strong cast was made up of eight people; seniors: Rachel Buswell, Dave Fox, Vanessa Morrel, and Adam Peltzman, junior: Dan Cornely, sophomores: Julie Lacouture, and Kelly Pendergast, and freshman: Suzy Bouffard. The tech crew of Mat McDaniel, Chris Callahan, and Josh Rothman had the task of making stars spin and juggling balls disappear.

The success of "Vanishing Act," as well as the entire festival itself helped make this year one of Center Stage's biggest yet.

RUSS BURGESS

Seniors are on the Westboro High School stage tap dancing and doing ballet, hugging each other like teddy bears, glued to their seats (literally), and laughing so hard they have tears rolling down their face at a movie no one else can see. What is going on??? It happens to be December 13, 1991 and Russ Burgess is entertaining us. The man is amazing. How many people do you know can make a group of people stuff invisible money in their pockets, down their shirts, AND everywhere else imaginable. He got everyone on stage to do seductive dancing!

He had the audience rolling on the ground when Andy Kassatly meowed, and said, "I tought I taw a putty-tat!"; while Phil Hanaka called him an imbecile. He ended the show right before Andy and Phil were about to hit each other.

▲ The Senior guys get a little closer and seemed to be happy about the situation.

WHS's Foreign Exchange Students

For the ones who don't know me, I'm the tall guy with the long hair who talks with this strange accent. Yeah, and I'm supposed to write about my stay at W.H.S.

Well, when I first came to this school, I was sort of confused by all these rules that the school had established. You know, I wasn't used to not being able to go outside or leave a study without a pass. I was thinking, it's weird that you can't throw snowballs and stuff; but you know, I sort of got used to it. I learned that it's like that in most American schools, and it wasn't too bad either.

I got to like my school more and more, and the one thing that I like the most is the variety of people you meet. You know, I have a lot of friends in different schools all over the state and country, and I have visited quite a few schools; and it's really a fact, most school populations are made up of a few types of students; but at W.H.S. you find everything and the people are friendly and fun. I like Westborough for the people and the good atmosphere that I have found here. It's a fun place to go to school, especially if your an exchange student and you don't have to worry about your grades.

Mario Muller

Westborough High School was a little different than I expected. I thought that American students would have more freedom and that the schools would have a more relaxed atmosphere. Of course Westborough High probably has a higher educational level than most American high schools. Of course, compared to European schools Westborough High would be average.

There are some major differences between the average American and the European high school. In Europe students have a different schedule every day and don't have two days that are alike each other one right after the other. Depending on what day it is, the school ends between 12:00 and 3:00. In Europe, unlike America, one large test is given at the end of the year to determine your final grade. Also European schools don't maintain a sports program. There is gym but no school teams. If you want to play a sport, you must join a private club. I like this arrangement better as it allows one a greater choice as to which activities to participate. One other difference involves the greater attention to theory in American schools. In European schools more emphasis is placed on practical and useful education.

SENIOR

Senior Traditions are a big part of the school's spirit. Every underclassmen looks forward to Secret Santas, and dressing up for Halloween. Seniors inherit the right to make fools out of themselves by wearing costumes, performing lunchroom serenades to freshman, and singing. It's a time when seniors actually have the right to act up in class, be loud and obnoxious, without worrying about offending teachers. Halloween day only the seniors have the "right" to dress up, and this year Snow White, Prince Charming, and the Seven Dwarfs came to school singing Hi Ho! Some traditions though get seniors into trouble. For years seniors have shown their spirit by writing their class year on the drive, and you can still see remnants of classes gone by.

Westborough

The inevitable news appeared on CNN just as Westborough High students were preparing for their mid-year exams the next day. It was Wednesday, January 16, 1991, when the government announced that the attack on the Iraqi held territory of Kuwait had begun. For the first few days, we were glued to the television, students and teachers alike. The war touched us all, each in a different way, and some it affected more than others. The artwork and words shown here were written by an American soldier who is known to some here at WHS. His thoughts and opinions explain the effect of the war better than any article of copy can.

Westboro High hasn't forgotten nine hostages

By Carole Brennan
Staff Reporter
With Wire Reports

WESTBORO — Nine yellow balloons floated over Westboro High School yesterday as students used the fourth anniversary of the capture of hostage Terry Anderson to remember the nine Americans held captive in Lebanon.

The balloons — each one marked with the name of a hostage and tied with a yellow ribbon — were released at the close of a three-week, schoolwide program called Project Freedom.

PUBLIC AWARENESS

"We are trying to raise public awareness" of the hostage situation, said Charlotte Spinney, a social studies teacher at Westboro High and coordinator of the project. "We feel that the hostages have been abandoned by the press and by the government and the public."

Selectmen named yesterday Project Freedom Day to mark the students' efforts to help free the hostages, Ms. Spinney said.

Around the world, friends and relatives of the hostages, journalists, government officials and others used the day to rekindle interest in the plight of the hostages.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, and has been held longer than any of the other Western hostages in Lebanon.

At Millbury Memorial High School, history teacher Roger Desrosiers said for the past nine school days, students have read over the loud speaker the biographies of the American hostages. And they have decorated the school halls with computer graphics banners that identify the hostages and ask that they be brought back from Lebanon.

LETTER WRITING

Today, Desrosiers' global issues class begins coaching English classes throughout the school in a letter-writing campaign to President Bush.

"They will ask him to pay greater attention and to do something to gain the release of the hostages," Desrosiers said.

In Westboro, the lobby of the high school is decorated with posters of the hostages. The posters are 3 feet by 5 feet.

Students and faculty at the school spent part of Monday writing letters to Bush. Ms. Spinney said 600 letters were put in the mail yesterday.

The student council will continue the campaign by writing letters to other schools in Central Massachusetts asking students in those schools to write letters to the president.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Bush administration officials reiterated that their policy of making no concessions is the best course.

Bush, who took office barely two months ago, has continued the former Reagan administration's policies that he helped develop as vice president, U.S. officials said.

Since the Reagan administration was embarrassed in November 1986 by revelations it had sold weapons to Iran, the U.S. policy has been, "No concessions, but we're willing to talk to anyone," an official said.

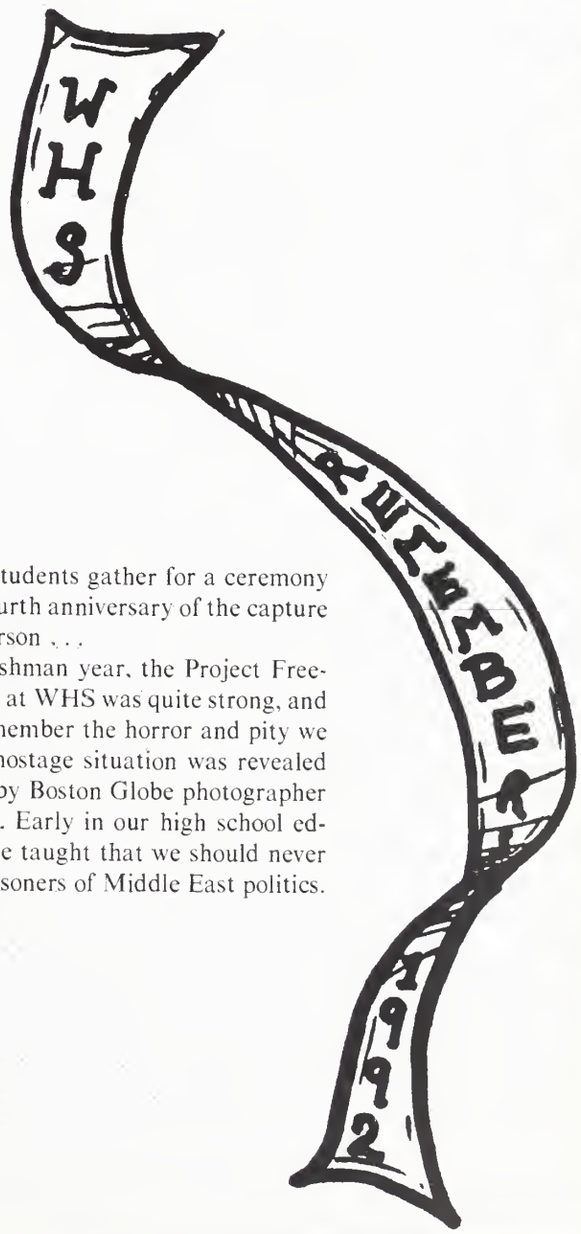
WESTBOROUGH, MASSACHUSETTS 01581



Westborough students gather for a ceremony marking the fourth anniversary of the capture of Terry Anderson . . .
During our freshman year, the Project Freedom movement at WHS was quite strong, and many of us remember the horror and pity we felt when the hostage situation was revealed in detail to us by Boston Globe photographer Stan Grossfeld. Early in our high school education we were taught that we should never forget those prisoners of Middle East politics.

Believe it or not all of these events happened since the class of '92 was in the first grade. We were spread out all over the nation at that time — eventually we came together at Westborough High. Although these events affected us in various, even remote ways, there are surely a few that stick out in our recent memory. The world has changed in many ways since we began school. At one time we feared Soviet Communism, then South American drug cartels, and Libyan dictators. Before our high school years, AIDS was a remote disease, now we recognize it as the killer that it is. Research in cancer and other life threatening diseases has saved thousands of lives since 1980. To quote an old saying "We've come a long way, baby". Fortunately, there's lots more for us to do. We are the doctors, scientists, teachers, and politicians of tomorrow, and there's always room for improvement . . .

SENIORS

Each year graduation seems to be earlier than the year before. Then again, Seniors are basically out the door, over the hill, and down the path by Thanksgiving . . .

After the SAT scores and class rank, the foremost thought in a Senior's mind is college, College, COLLEGE!!!

Occasionally, they descend to Earth from "Admission Scenario Hell" long enough to shop for Senior Ball gowns or even Caps and Gowns.

Okay, okay, they'll admit that perhaps they do lack a little in the academic area from November to June, but with a thousand pressures, as well as the temptation that any teenager faces to "forget all about it," the Seniors usually come through it alright . . .

▶Mr. P displays his finery, telling all the world that he's considered our "Best Dressed" teacher!

▼Mr. Mannix unanimously won the "Best Smile" honor.

▲Mr. Hayes has inhaled a few too many paint fumes, but he's still the "Best Looking Teacher" at WHS.

▶Mrs. Cornely wasn't exactly showing us her "Most Spirited" side!!

Each year, we include a feature in the yearbook on the "superlatives" of the senior class. This year, we decided to let the faculty at Westborough High have a chance to show their best. The talent, beauty and spirit of our faculty is overwhelming, and they certainly love to let us know it. After a harsh and heated campaign, and an election that came down to the wire, the votes are in and we have our winners. Here are this year's Faculty Superlatives:

What is Junior year all about? Despite the ulcers and the never ending headache, we have the prom and our licenses to look forward to. We drive around pretending to be "studs". while the freshmen girls admire us. That's part of the fun of Junior year, having that superiority over the freshmen and sophomores. It is a great year: the year when we gain a sense of togetherness and spirit for our class.

Sophomore year is a year of preparation, and inbetweens. We spend the whole year getting ready for junior year — the year that really counts. We aren't freshmen, but we aren't upperclassmen. — YET. Being a sophomore is being stuck in the middle. We are not old enough to have our licenses , but we don't want to be seen with our parents either. It's nice having friends with licenses. Academically, it's not too bad, but we hear next year is impossible. Maybe we can stay sophomores a little longer?

▼Bonnie Arnold wonders what Melinda Wilkins is laughing about.

Freshman year isn't as bad as everyone told us it would be, even though we are looked down upon. The days seem really long without a snack break, but surprisingly the work load isn't too bad. The worst part about freshmen year was trying to find the elevator that reaches the indoor pool, and the homerooms on the fourth floor! We were happy to see that the lockers were too small to have a person stuffed into them. Being a freshmen may sound degrading, but knowing we'll be seniors soon makes up for it. Let's just hope we make it there!

WESTBOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY
WESTBORO, MA 01581

APRIL
1990

Sports at Westborough High School have always been a major part of student life and spirit. More than half of the student body participates in athletics of some sort, whether it be soccer or cheerleading. Not only do students get gung ho about playing in the sports, but they also really enjoy cheering on their favorite teams as well. Westboro, being the small school that it is, has an unusually high success rate against other larger schools. We've had our share of success including various state champion teams, and district champs. Westboro High is known for its athletic excellence and school spirit. We can be very proud of our strong participation in sports. Athletics is the school's backbone of pride and spirit, and will hopefully continue to be for years to come.

The 1991 Ranger Football team had only two returning starters from last year, co-Captains Phil Hanaka and Paul Baptiste. Therefore, the young Rangers had a difficult task in trying to keep up the Rangers' winning tradition.

The season began on a good note with a promising victory over the Assabet Aztecs in the Jamboree. In the first regular season game the Ranger squad scored a decisive win, 19-0, over the division one Panthers of Marlboro. After being edged out by a good Maynard team, the Rangers suffered possibly their most disappointing loss, to Ayer. In addition, the team was faced with the season-ending injury to two-way player Ronnie Bates. With two strong victories over Nashoba and archrival Shrewsbury, the Ranger season looked to be on the rebound. However, the team was edged out in several games by some of Central Massachusetts' best team. The highlight of the year came ion week 10, against highly favored Fitchburg. After falling behind early the Rangers battled back to tie the score in the last minute with a dramatic P.J. Matson touchdown pass to Brian Cusson and subsequent two-point conversion to senior Tom Gallen.

The Rangers ended the season with a heartbreaking loss to Algonquin on Thanksgiving. But despite this year's record, the Rangers have high hopes for next year. With many returning juniors the Ranger offense figures to be strong, there is no doubt that the team will improve on this year's record and regain the winning tradition of Westborough football.

Coach Jody Mishna, Karen Berry, Daniel Robinson, Shannon Murphy, Sue O'Mally, Cptns. Erin O'Toole, Sue Smith, Jamie Irwin; Alexis Eliopolus, Amy Powell, Christina Paquette, Courtney McKlean

This years field hockey team started out slow with only five seniors on the team. The expectations were low especially after the tie with Gardener. But hard work and aspirations of the team and coaching staff paid off in the long run. With training the novice players in offense, and with the outstanding defense goalie of Sue Smith, the 1991 field hockey team succeeded to be the District Champions. Fifty two red-clad athletes worked together for their success. Led by senior captains Jamie Irwin, Erin O'Toole and Sue Smith, the team was well rewarded.

With a record of 16-1-4, a league championship, a district championship, and a state semi-finalist position, these dedicated girls proved their worth, and then some. Their combined efforts have established a serious tradition of excellence that future teams will find hard to surpass.

Men's Soccer

The Men's Varsity Soccer team ended it's season with a 6-11 record. This is very impressive considering past Westboro seasons. Captains Jay "Red" Harris, John "School" Shaw, Andy "Hierba" Heib helped pull the team together, and got them excited to win throughout the entire season. Despite their losses, the team had a lot of close games against some formidable opponents. One of which was a 2-0 loss to Nashoba, last years league champs. It was definitely a defensive team showing how the Westboro team and fans can pull together when need be. Their defeats do not show their great sportsmanship and talent that some of the individual players do have. The future does seem prosperous for the Westboro Men's Soccer team next year. They'll only be losing six seniors leaving high hopes for a big year.

Women's Soccer

This year's women's soccer team was filled with promise and potential. They fought hard and played well in a challenging division and defied the Westboro soccer stereotype of the past years. Under the coaching of Kathy and Red McCarthy and Javier Ochoa, and the leadership of captains Melissa Cacciapouti, Leanne Doherty, and Meghan McCarthy, the team showed remarkable improvement throughout the season. They endured individual injuries and hung in there with their outstanding team spirit. Their forever loyal fans also contributed to the great improvement of the team, always showing their support and admiration for the effort the girls put in. Although the team would have liked to finish with a better record, they did not lack in individual talent. This year there were three Mid-Wach League All-Stars from our team, Meghan McCarthy, Nancy Nabarta, and Anissa Prefontaine. The women's soccer team has been showing more and more improvement with every year and promise to be a formidable opponent in the future. With the coaches and many skilled players returning next season, the team is sure to have much more in store for us.

mens Cross Country

The Westborough High School men's cross-country team this year had definitely earned a higher status among the eyes of the student body and teams from other schools.

Their 9-2 record reflects their success against other teams. They lost only to Nashoba and Oakmont (two traditional power-houses) in dual meets, and at the Wachusett Invitational meet, even usurped the Oakmont team with a wave of Westborough strength characterized by Taylor Christie, Ken Larsh, Jim Doyle, and Walker Christie. These four became known as "The Pack" to other teams and was a major reason for Westborough's second place finish at this prestigious meet.

With the loss of only one senior this year, more success seems to be in store for the future Westboro men's cross-country team. All in all the men's cross-country team's well deserved reputation will still be alive in the years to come.

Women's Cross Country

▼ Erika Ingerman and Jen Wheelock keep pace with each other as they struggle through the race.

Who are these girls, and what motivates them to willingly torture themselves everyday? These questions may come to mind when considering the Westborough High School Women's Cross-Country team. Despite all the bad weather, all the pain and boredom involved, a handful people are still willing to participate in (and actually enjoy) this sport. It's certainly not for everyone, even though the participants receive a deep personal satisfaction in knowing that they can run seven miles without stopping or that they've improved their time on a particular race course.

The previous coach, John Doyle, returned after having been gone last season. His tough, but encouraging attitude kept the runners thinking positively and trying their best all season. At season's end, although they didn't top last year's 10 and 4 season, the girls' cross-country team still did well finishing the season with a 6 and 5 record.

Despite the fact that there were no freshman members on the team this year, their success was considerable. Having a large number of runners allows a margin for problems such as injuries and illnesses, usually. However, due to the team's small size every member had to remain healthy, injury-free and capable of giving one hundred and ten per cent.

Not many people have the will power to even consider cross-country. However, this year, as with other years, it has really paid off and made all of the sweat and toil worthwhile.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The Westboro High Schools Men's basketball team has achieved great success this year. With their 13-2 overall status they have shown great ability and achievement for the entire season. By beating Ayer in an explosive home game the Rangers became the Co-League champs. Although a very young and mostly inexperienced team with only four seniors, they have struggled and fought for their wins. Andy Kassatly, co-captain of the team, stated the key to their success was an excellent, tough, hard-nosed man to man defense, and rebounding. The Rangers play very well as a team, and as a result have surprised the rest of the league with their outstanding victories. There is great hope in the future for such a young and successful team, and we expect to see a great deal more of the Ranger Basketball Team.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

This season was one of great promise for the girl's basketball team at WHS. Led by captains Sue Smith, Leanne Doherty, and Ursula Ronnquist; the team started off slowly, but then rebounded strongly with an impressive league record, and a birth to the district tournament. This team was different than the previous years. Not only did it have strong leadership and play from the captains and fellow seniors Kristen Moulten and Beth Rideal, the team really benefited from the strong play of the underclassmen.

With two sophomores and four freshman on the varsity team along with one lone junior, the basketball team worked together to be known as the best defensive team in the league. In eight games, the Rangers held their opponents to under forty points in the game. This tenacious defense brought the Rangers extreme success. Also the Ranger's ability to run the court quickly brought them quick points. With so many underclassmen coming back next year, the Rangers should have continued success in the years to come.

HOCKEY

If you could give the 1991-1992 Westboro Hockey team another chance at the season, they'd be contenders. After a tough first half with a difficult schedule, the team has come together and played really well. Their three balanced lines of Mike Colangelo, Steve LeBlanc, Jake Mathieu, Dana Hazel, Mike LeBlanc, Doug Eastman, Paul Baptiste, Mat McDaniel, cated to the recovering Jon Drisko, who was attending the first game of the season. Ian McPherson came on strong at the end of the season. The defense of Justin Woolacott, Matt Voultour, Matt Leverone, Chris DeBuono and Mark Hunter was also impressive in front to the brilliant goal tending of Brent Hazzard.

The high point of the season came in a 4-3 victory over rival Hudson, who Westboro hadn't beat in 5 years. The game was dedi-

GYMNASTIC

Gymnastics is a sport of agility, strength, and intense concentration. It also requires a great deal of confidence in one's self. This confidence comes from team support and encouragement as well as from individual courage.

This year, Westboro High Gymnastics has shown an amazing amount of team spirit and support, and as a result, we have greatly improved. Each member has matured both as a gymnast and as an individual. From Kate Galicki's "Power Sticker", to coach Bill Martin's words, encouragement, and inspiration, everyone has contributed to the team's strength and character. No one can deny their spirit. In fact, the team won the Sportsmanship Award at the League Meet.

Senior Captains Marybeth Lynch and Katie Rodliffe would like to personally thank everyone on the team . Thanks to Bill, and Good Luck next year!

CHEERING

At every Ranger game, one thing is for certain, the Westboro Cheerleaders will be there with their great big smiles, their spirited cheers, and their great routines. Although the winter and fall squads are completely different teams, they both carry on that great Westboro tradition of good, sportsmanlike spirit. They dazzle us with their magnificent lifts, and their fantastic basket tosses. A cheerleader spends days practicing her routine, to make it the best possible so she can rouse up school spirit. She'll risk life and limb just to entertain. Cheerleading is a truly challenging sport. The future holds a lot in store for the Westboro High Cheering Squad, and we thank them for all their efforts to make our spirit the best of all schools.

INDOOR TRACK

With the coming of the new year, a new team sport was added to the prestigious Westboro High School Athletics roster of winter sports. The new Indoor Track team was a rather small team for both boys and girls, but an unusually successful one. This new team surprised many people with its handful of excellent runners. Cross country runners Adam Babcock, and Walker and Taylor Christie led the team in middle and long distance running and along with a greatly improved distance runner, Dave Noble, formed a two mile relay team which placed second in the state class meet at Harvard University. Also placing second in the state meet was Jamie Irwin who came on strong from the very beginning of the season.

With the meets being held on Saturdays, and at South High in Worcester it is no wonder not many Westboro fans could attend, but despite the lack of fan support for this new track team, it upheld the Westboro High spirit with the enthusiastic coaching of David Robinson. Will hopefully grow in size as well as popularity in the years to come. Both he and Athletics Director Bill Walsh put in a lot of effort to make sure Indoor Track had the chance to show its stuff this season. The future holds high hopes for the growth and further success of this team, that although has only been in existence for a matter of a few months, has upheld the Westboro tradition of excellent sports achievement.

One out of every five students at WHS is part of the Westboro High School Marching Band. Whether an instrument player, a flag squad member, a majorette, or just a helper, over a fifth of this school participates. Such enthusiasm for the marching band is only one element that adds to the spirit of the band. The actual band members aren't quiet for an instant, always cheering for the football team or for themselves, and with Kerry Thomas and Kate McGinn leading the band as drum majors, spirit was never lacking. No other school can top the great cheers that it cries. Whether it be UGLY or MAMA; band members have blown away other schools with their undying spirit.

STRESS

Like any other situation, there is stress in school. And it seems to be there all year round. Whether it's you who has a test next period, or your best friend who has one. During mid-terms and finals, the entire school has that aura of "Don't come near me!"

Even the teachers get stressed. It's sometimes hard to believe, but they worry about their students. They try to motivate us to learn, and when someone isn't doing as well as they should, they worry. We stress out taking the tests, they stress out correcting them. Mrs. Zolubos and Mr. Mowhiney must go through a lot of stress. What is it like having to run an entire school?

If you've ever been in room 301 during a deadline, you WILL see stress, and lots of it. So much stress that you could probably cut it with a knife. Ask Mr. Kaplan. Does he have stories to tell?

The strange thing is that each person deals with stress differently. While one person yells and will destroy anything in his path, another person bundles it up inside until all he has left to do is cry. Some people like to be with others when they are stressed because it helps to ease the tension, and others like to deal with it on their own.

All I know is we have caught moments of stress through pictures and now see what you look like when you are UNDER STRESS.

▲This student is so stressed out that it has caused his face to deform. So much that we had to cover it up.

▼Brian Caddigan and Erika Ingerman realize that along with senior slide comes only four hours of sleep at night. You can see the effects.

▼▼Danielle Tsouderous realizes that there is only 179 days of school left.

▼Michelle McCourt has a headache and it has algebra written all over it.

▲Mark Benton asks the burning question: What the #@!* is this?

▲Karen Baho is in utter disbelief over the fact that she has only 2 more years of school left.

▶Stress is something that everyone can relate to. See what we mean?

THE people behind the BOOK

The homeroom all together and wide awake.

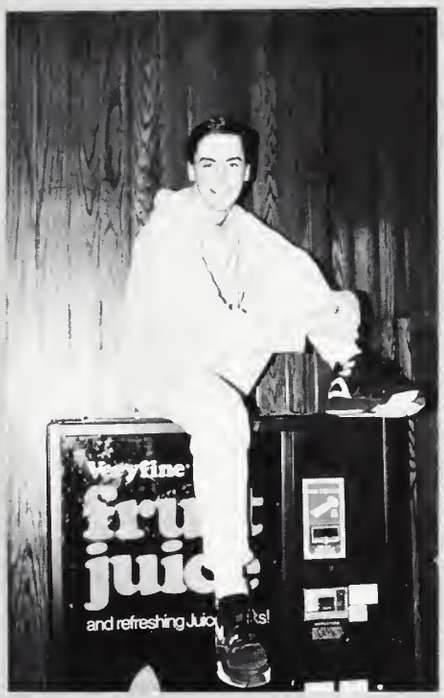
Melissa and Sheri without their fangs.

Mr. Kaplan shut up and get your information from somebody else!! Poor Mr. Kaplan he had to deal with my breakouts, but I feel no pity for him because we had to deal with his incessant desire to know every single aspect of our lives. His favorite tidbits of info – the editor's love lives. But if it weren't for Mr. Kaplan yearbook would be one big tornado of STRESS!! Yes stress would be the word to describe the life of an editor, but the good times outweighed the bad so I won't dwell on it. Sheri, thanks for being the procrastinator you are and keeping me from having a coronary just trying to do things quickly. I love ya kiddo, thanks for all the great memories. Kerrie or should I say MT? You may fall for the most gullible jokes, but you're a great photographer, and if it weren't for you none of this would be possible. And as for Mike, what can I say besides Jane You Ignorant S_____!! Thanks for doing almost anything for money, and handling it oh, so well. (Where would be without yearbook?) Alexis, Sarah, and Arwen, Felicity you have a lot ahead of you, you'll come to hate those little stickers, but I hope it's as good for you as it was for me.

Well, it's hard to comprehend that the year is really over. And I have only one thing to say, "Vanessa and Jess, it wasn't THAT bad?!?!?!?" They told me that I was insane to be even thinking about being editor. And did I listen? Of course not. (To be truthful, some one who shall remain nameless, but resides in room 301 did quite a bit of coaxing to help me make my decision.) I cannot lie, the yearbook takes up a lot of time and effort, but it's worth it. And life is easier when you have a good staff to take on some of the work. And I guess I have to give a little credit to Melissa, right? You know I love you Melis, and I wouldn't, or rather couldn't, find a better person to share my torture with. And to Kerrie, or should I say MT, you take orders so well. Thanks for finishing all the deadlines and shoving that stupid camera in my face. To Mike, thanks for making this yearbook possible. So when are we going to schedule that trip to the Bahamas? And to good, ole Mr. Kaplan, who convinced me that this was my calling. Because of you I learned what a DEADLINE is and how to spend my time wisely, and the importance of communication, delegation, cooperation, and organization. My mother will be proud.

Believe me, it's not the drapes or the ticking heater, the loud electrical switch in the English bookroom or anything physical that makes me love 301. But I love simple things: Melissa's passing glare on "deadline days," Sheri's amazingly good-natured criticism's of my ideas, Mike's occasional offers to put me in the driver's seat of a Pontiac, Kerrie's "Hi, Mr. Kaplan" when she's not avoiding me in the hallways. I love it all, and have and will continue to in years to come. My sense of the yearbook is friends, granted, younger friends, but friends all the same. My day would be bereft of much of my joy if I could no longer witness the editors and staff, too many to name, romping and working hard, raucously laughing and writing copy and laying out pages and gathering information and taking pictures and filling the juice machine and selling Holiday Ball tickets ...

Bob Kaplan



Well, it's finally over, and I had a ball(no pun). The work wasn't that bad and the free juice made it worthwhile. Thanks a lot Bob. Aloha.

I just can't believe that all the pictures are taken and all of the deadlines are met. Thanks for all the help, everyone! No, really I appreciate it. Actually there a few people that I would like to thank, Mr. Kaplan, Melissa, and Shrimp.You know, Sheri, that you need to learn to listen to me when I say that a rode is two way, because I'm usually right. Melissa — you need to learn to relax, but hey, how many people could figure a way to be editor and not be a LITTLE stressed out at times? Mike, thanx so much for all of the money!! Mr. Kaplan, you really are the best, thanx so much for all the understanding throughout the past year, you have really made it an — enjoyable?!?!? year. Good-bye everyone, and good luck! '92 RULES!!

To whom it may concern:

This spread is dedicated to all of you out there who signed that petition. It may have seemed like a trivial thing to you, sign a piece of paper, no big deal, RIGHT? Well, it meant a lot to those of us who had to come up with a new theme and cover for your yearbook. It wasn't as bad as we thought it would be (except of course for the heart attack). And to look at things in a different light, you are the ones who made this yearbook what it is. What you saw in the 150 or so previous pages, is a result of what you didn't want.

Some of you will recognize the first cover of your book, for the rest of you: this was it! We promised you we would use the "old" cover, and since it's Mr. Kaplan's all time favorite picture it had to go in as a SURPRISE!!

P.S. To future yearbook people, we hope you don't have to go through the trouble of deciding on TWO themes and making TWO covers.

Ode to #1

Our daughter this is a poem just for you
As you mark your beginning as a graduate of 92
Little did we know our bouncing baby girl
So quickly would be thrust out into the world
Your determination brought to you many accolades
In Studies, activities, and sports that you played
Your classmates, teammates, teachers, and friends
Will have gladness and sadness as your twelfth year ends
To Kristin and Mathew a legacy is left
Scholar, athlete a person at her best
Putting feelings into words is tough
Appreciation and love are just not enough
But to describe the joy and pride that we know
We can finally say "Good girl, one down, and two to go"

Love
Mom and Dad
Kristin and Matt
